Khan Academy

https://www.khanacademy.org/

Have your students tried Khan Academy yet? They can select from any math course ranging from Kindergarten to Calculus and Statistics, or a Science and Engineering course, ranging from Biology to AP Physics and Chemistry. In the Arts and Humanities, courses are available in grammar, US History, World History, Art History and more. Computer programming, computer science, hour of code, and computer animation are included as well. Finally, there are free test preparation materials available for the SAT, LSAT, MCAT, GMAT and more, plus college and career information. Classes are available in more than 20 different languages.
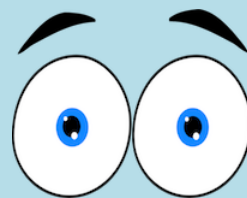

Khan Academy's mission is to "provide a free, world-class education to anyone, anywhere." Khan Academy is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.

Khan Academy is Highly Recommended By Infotopia!

Welcome!

Welcome to the students and teachers of Kelseyville, California! We're happy you are using Infotopia.info, Infotrek.info and Kidtopia.info for your research needs!

Are your students researching the history of mathematics or biographies of mathematicians? This website, the MacTutor History of Mathematics, from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland, had the best and most inclusive resources that we have found! It is also searchable!
