WE GROW TEACHERS

<https://www.teachthought.com/>

Teachers can look for new ideas in teaching and learning, critical thinking, project-based learning, technology integration, and more at this fabulous website. It is searchable and includes professional development as well.

Are you searching for a book, an eBook, or DVD at a local library on a specific topic? Try using our WorldCat label on Infotopia. Here's how it works:

1. Enter your search term on Infotopia. Press enter or search.
2. Click on the label "WorldCat" at the top of the results.
3. Scroll past the line separating the ads from the search results.
4. Click on the first result and you will find titles related to your search topic.
5. Click on "Find a library" under the WorldCat search box and type in your zip code.
6. You may have to re-enter the search term.
7. If there are no libraries close to you, it will list all available libraries.
8. Don't forget--you should be able to check out the book via inter-library loan at your local public library.
9. Once you are on WorldCat, you can customize your search by searching for images, DVDs, websites, music, and more.
10. You may be able to check out eBooks via Overdrive using your local public library card.
11. Try your search with the search term "Rembrandt" to see how it works.

(Note: You can always send us an email with questions or check with your local librarian for help.)

infotrek

Have you tried www.Infotrek.info yet? Designed for upper high school and college students, it's an amazing search tool. For each topic, it offers more detailed topics and then enters the search words for you. The preliminary topics include the following:

- Science, technology and math
- Biographies
- Art and recreation
- Literature
- Social studies and history
- Quotations
- Health, nutrition, medicine and disease
- Images, audio and video
- Languages

Each topic is further divided into as many as seven sub-topics. Try it and send us some feedback! (bell@infotopia.info)
